

HERS rater incentives are available in your area! If you are working on multifamily projects served by Pacific Gas & Electric (PG&E) you still have time to qualify for HERS rater incentives from PG&E.

HERS rater incentives are available through PG&E's California Multifamily New Homes (CMFNH) program for qualifying projects that submit their application and documentation by November 15, 2008. PG&E is offering HERS rater incentives of $60 per unit with a cap of $12,000 per project for multifamily projects that achieve a minimum of 15% above code. This program applies to low-rise and high-rise multifamily new construction projects (including apartments, condominiums, and attached townhomes), certifies projects as meeting the Tier 1 energy efficiency requirements of the New Solar Homes Partnership, and verifies low-rise projects going beyond Tier 1 looking to achieve ENERGY STAR® designation. Single room occupancy units (SROs), dormitories, and mixed-use projects are also eligible.

Don't miss the chance to submit a project and qualify for these incentives. All projects in the PG&E territory must be submitted by November 15, 2008 with COMPLETE and ACCURATE documentation:

- A complete set of current construction drawings
- Your most current Title 24 input files in .bld or .mp7 format (not .pdf)
- A completed, wet signed SCE application (builder and energy consultant) – email or call and we will email you an application

If you get stuck and are having trouble getting your multifamily project to 15% (or more) CMFNH can provide design assistance with the project owner, design team, and consultants.
